

it pays to learn

What is the branded learning centre network?

These are centres that have been set up throughout Scotland to support anybody who wants to learn. They are places where you can take up a course or get advice on what and how you can learn. You'll find them in community centres, libraries, colleges and workplaces - even on buses.

Branded learning centres offer different ways of learning that are often more informal and flexible than the traditional environment. The informal nature of a centre can reinforce learning as a positive choice and there is a breadth of learning opportunities available to learners.

How to find them

There are over 500 learndirect scotland learning centres all over Scotland. So there's probably one near you, your colleagues and your workplace.
