

ILA Scotland – Now it's for everyone

ILA Scotland is now available for everyone living in Scotland, aged over 18.

Whatever you earn, you can claim up to £100 towards a range of computer courses. You can choose from courses that will help you get on at work, master the basics, get up to speed with the latest software, keep in touch by email, or just make sure that you get the most out of your computer.

We can also give you any help and advice you need to find a course that's right for you. With all sorts of computer courses available from learning providers throughout Scotland, there will be one to fit your lifestyle. As well as learning valuable computer skills, you'll get a qualification recognised by employers when you complete your course. To find out which computer courses are available go to the Course Search page. You will need to check with the helpline or your learning provider which computer courses you are eligible for.
